

Can my camper attend with two friends (a group of three)?

No, campers can attend camp with one bunkmate but may not list additional cabinmates. A significant component of camp is the relationships that evolve, both new relationships and continuing relationships that grow deeper. While we work to promote great interactions as a cabin community and among bunkmates, we recognize we have a role in establishing the best context for these relationships to flourish. With this in mind, it has been our experience that campers who are part of a group of three are subject to a less-than-ideal camp experience. Additionally, a group of three can negatively impact the rest of the cabin.